How REAL Health could work for you:

At age 42, Greg discovered he had high blood pressure during a routine health check. His GP sent him to a cardiologist for tests and Greg started taking daily medication. He also made some lifestyle adjustments.

But eight months later Greg started to experience angina pains in his chest. His cardiologist sent him for an angiogram (a test that shows blood flow through the heart arteries) which revealed that his best hope for a longer life was coronary bypass surgery.

Over a period of 12 months, Greg's specialist and surgery bills totalled more than $60,000. Fortunately, he had AIA REAL Health which covered the full cost of his medical bills, less his $500 excess.

Evidence suggests that one third of all cancer cases could be cured if detected early and treated adequately. A further third are estimated to be entirely preventable if public health measures are undertaken.
